MRS. BESSIE GROUNDWATER DIES AT HER HOME NEAR ACME

Mrs. Bessie Innie Groundwater, 73, died Saturday, August 20, at her home near Acme after a long illness.

She was born at Ayr, Scotland, and came to the United States in 1902 and to Calgary in 1906. In 1921 she moved to the Acme district. She was a member of Rebekah Lodge at Acme.

She is survived by her husband, James; a daughter, Mrs. Ian Sloan, Moose Jaw; a son, Ellister, Acme; a brother, William Douglas, and a sister, Mrs. Alex Shaw, both of Carbon; and three grandchildren. A son, D. Groundwater, was killed overseas with the Edmonton Fusiliers in 1944.

Rev. J. Rex Brown officiated at funeral services held Tuesday at 2 p.m. from Park Memorial Chapel, Calgary. Burial was made in the Union cemetery with McInnis and Holloway in charge.

Duck Hunting Dates Are Set

The duck hunting dates for the southern Alberta districts are Sept. 24 to Nov. 19, according to the hunting regulations released Thursday night by the Federal Wildlife Service.

In North Alberta (the area north of the Athabasca River) the season will run from Sept. 19 to Nov. 5. In the Edmonton district the season will be from Sept. 17 to Nov. 12.

The southern district of the province is defined as follows: all the area south of a point where the centre line of Highway No. 12 intersects the east boundary of Alberta; thence westerly along the centre line of Highway No. 12, through Cammerton and Stettler, to the point of intersection of the Centre line of Highway No. 12 with the centre line of Highway No. 2, southerly along the centre line of Highway No. 2, to its intersection with the centre line of Highway No. 11, westerly along the centre line of Highway No. 11 to Brazeau and then due west to the western boundary of Alberta.

The migratory bird bag limits for Alberta are the same as last year. That is, ducks, eight a day, 16 in possession and forty for the season; geese, five a day, ten in possession and 15 for the season.

The northern district, or district No. 1 is defined as that part of the province lying north of the right bank of the Athabasca River going downstream to its intersection with the north boundary of township 72 from the Athabasca River to its intersection with the Saskatchewan border.

The Edmonton district is defined as that part of the province lying between the northern and southern districts.

There is a closed season throughout the year on wood ducks, swans, Ross's geese, cranes, all shore birds except Wilson's snipe and all migratory non-game and insectivorous birds.

Migratory game birds killed during the open season may be possessed in Alberta at any time, but the onus of proof that birds possessed were lawfully killed shall be on the person having the birds in possession.

It is forbidden to "use an automatic (auto-loading) gun or a pump gun with a magazine that will carry more than two cartridges or a sawed or a machine gun, or battery or rifle, or a shotgun loaded with a single bullet or any gun larger than a No. 10 gauge, or any weapon other than a gun or blow torch and the use of live birds as decoys, or of any airplane or power-boat, sail boat, or night light, and shooting from any motor or wheeled vehicle, or a vehicle to which a draught animal is attached."

The shooting of migratory game birds earlier than one-half hour before the sun rises, or later than one-half hour after sunset is prohibited.

It is prohibited to hunt, kill or attempt to kill any game within 100 yards of the edge of the waters of the North Saskatchewan, Red Deer, Bow, South Saskatchewan or Old Man rivers. The shooting of geese within two miles of the edge of the waters of Sullivan Lake is prohibited.

The penalty for violation of the migratory bird laws is a fine of not less than ten dollars and not more than three hundred dollars, or imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or both fine and imprisonment.

Grain Quotas Set By Wheat Board

The Wheat Board has fixed the delivery quota on wheat and oats at 10 bushels per seeded acre except at points which will be declared open from time to time. There is an open delivery quota on barley at all delivery points.

It is the Board's intention to keep the position at all delivery points constantly under review and to increase or remove delivery quotas just as rapidly as space and car supply permit.

WILL TRADE FLAX ON EXCHANGE

The Grain Exchange has authorized trading in flax futures, effective August 29.

The Board of Governors of the Exchange announced recently trading in flax futures has been authorized to "provide essential facilities for marketing flax".

At the outset of trading in this commodity, daily fluctuation limits will not be imposed, although the Governors intend to set daily limits as deemed advisable.

Contract grades are no. 1 Canada west flaxseed. Producers may deliver no. 2 C.W. flaxseed at a discount of five cents a bushel.

There has been no trading in flax futures on the exchange since the July future went off the board. No new crop flax has yet reached the lakehead.

Producers of flax have the option of selling it on the open market or of disposing of it through a voluntary pool operated by the Canadian Wheat Board, now the marketing agent of coarse grains as well as wheat.

Producers selling flax through the pool receive an initial payment of $2.50 a bushel.

GREECE BUYS LARGE QUANTITY OF CANADIAN FISH

Canada supplied Greece with approximately 20,800,358 pounds of fish during the past year, or 28 per cent of the fish imported by that country. Codfish sent by the province of Newfoundland made up approximately 7,653,754 pounds of the quantity. Greece purchases from Canada consisted mostly of herrings and tinned fish, such as salmon, mackerel and pilchards. The present policy of the Greek government is to permit the purchase of cheaper items, such as pilchards, squids and sardines, in preference to the more expensive types of fish. Imports during the past year showed a marked increase over previous figures, which averages some 25,000 tons.

Harvesters' Wages Same as Last Year

The directors of the Alberta Federation of Agriculture met recently in Edmonton. One of the recommendations passed was that harvest wages be the same as last year, i.e. $8 a day for stocking and $7 a day for threshing, based on a ten-hour day with board and lodging. The meeting also took the stand that the import of harvest labor should be encouraged as, with a late harvest, time will be short.

The Federation also passed a resolution urging the Wheat Board to delay all movement of coarse grains from Alberta until the new crop is determined, thus giving livestock men here a chance to purchase necessary supplies.

Indications Of Prosperity

ALTHOUGH CANADA HAS BEEN experiencing a period of almost unprecedented prosperity and expansion since the war, there is always some speculation regarding the possibility of a business recession or a depression such as occurred in the nineteen thirties. A recent recession in the United States caused some apprehension as to whether there would be a similar trend in this country. However, some figures regarding financial conditions here, and given at a meeting of the Investment Dealers of Canada, held at Miami, Ontario, early in the summer, showed that there are still indications of continuing prosperity.

Among the figures presented were those showing the amount of bank savings in Canada at this time. There are 5,600,000 accounts in the various banks, with a total of $4,018,000,000, deposited in them. These were compared with the figures for 1943, when there were 4,600,000 accounts, totaling $3,757,000,000. Another interesting figure brought out in the discussions was that there are now 387,000 more accounts with balances exceeding one thousand dollars than there were fifteen years ago. It was also shown that employment rates are remaining at high levels except for seasonal drops which are to be expected in certain types of work.

At the time these figures were compiled there were 1,700,000 employed in Canada, which was 30,000 more than at the same period in 1943. Only 110,000, or three per cent, of the total work force was unemployed. This is looked upon as a period of full employment and at many times in the past would have been regarded as highly satisfactory. With more employment, there is more income, and the prosperity of a country, bank balances, which represent purchasing power, and employment, which is of fundamental importance, both appear to be at high levels in Canada at this time. Economists and financial experts do not all agree that what may happen in the future, but these facts are encouraging to those who believe that we are to enjoy continuing prosperity.

Unemployment Claims Show A Decline

OTTAWA.—Claims for unemployment insurance benefits declined in June. The bureau of statistics said they were down to $3,100 from the $3,700 claimed in May, but up from the $2,900 filed in May last year.

By the end of June, 1945, 90,400 claims came in on the live unemployment register, compared with 85,800 at the end of May and 86,900 at the end of June, 1944. Compared with 70,700 persons who were paid $2,511,000 in May, only 71,900 persons received one or more unemployment insurance benefits during June, getting $4,133,300. Payments were for 1,855,800 days of compensated unemployment in June, compared with 2,474,100 days in May.

In June last year 78,800 persons were compensated for 1,350,700 days. This amounted to $2,590,700.

Average duration of unemployment showed a slight increase in June estimated at 16.4 days compared with 16.4 days in May, but down sharply from the 17.8 days in June last year.

Benefits paid were slightly higher averaging $26.79 for each unemployed person in June, compared with $26.64 in May and $24.13 in June a year ago.

Average amount of benefit paid for each compensated day of unemployment amounted to $2,590,700.

$2.23 in May and $1.92 in June last year.

Trans-Canada Road Proposals Being Drafted

OTTAWA.—Federal government proposals on the construction of a trans-Canada highway will be sent to all provincial governments in the near future, a reconstruction department official said.

A document containing the proposals now is being drafted and will be sent to all provincial governments in the near future, a reconstruction department official said.

Legislation providing for federal contribution to the cost of the highway will not be submitted to parliament until all the provinces have indicated that they are fairly well in agreement on the question of share costs, the route of the highway and the standards of construction to be followed.

The official said plans call for use of many existing roads. As some provinces have not indicated what route they want to have the highway go through, no estimate has been made on the length of existing roads that will be used.

The highway, taken into account the use of certain existing links, has been estimated at $400,000,000. The official said 5,000 miles of completely new hard-surfaced highway could not be built for $400,000,000.

Mr. Winters said in an interview that the federal contribution likely will be in the neighborhood of $100,000,000 to $200,000,000.

Honey Crop Small This Year

WINNIPEG.—The Canadian bee isn't buzzing around as much this year as last, so the honey crop will be smaller.

However, the large surplus left over from last year will assure the consumer of an almost-normal honey supply.

Frank R. Garland, president of the Canadian Bee-Keepers' Council, said in an interview that had weather conditions in Ontario—chief honey-producing province—and drastic curtailment in western Canada indicated a crop of only 50 to 60 per cent of normal.

This is a surprising difference from last year when the beekeepers had to ask the Dominion government to take away some of the sting of an over-large crop and help them market their surplus.

The government agreed to buy 5,000,000 pounds of honey, provided it was packed in large containers.

They took only about 3,500,000 pounds, however, because much of the honey already was packed in small containers.

Production of honey in Canada last year totalled 45,000,000 pounds, including 10,000,000 from Ontario.

Price Set For All The Butter Now In Storage

OTTAWA.—The agricultural prices support board announced that the butter it has purchased at the current floor price will be sold to the trade at not less than cost plus storage charges.

The announcement recalled the bureau of statistics reported recently that butter storage stocks in Canada amounted to 56,000,000 pounds on Aug. 1. The dairy products board held 41,000,000 pounds of the total.

"The only abnormal feature of the present butter stocks in Canada is that they are largely held by the government instead of by the dairy industry and the trade," said the announcement.

The government began obtaining stocks when the heavy spring and summer production of butter sent prices below the floor fixed by the government. The floor was 58 cents in Montreal and Toronto, 59 cents in Charlottetown, Halifax and St. John's, and 57½ cents in Vancouver.

NORTH AMERICA PLANTS CROPS TO BE HARVESTED IN 90 YEARS

Tree Farm—Standing timber in rear is left to furnish seeds for cut over acreage in foreground.

By RICHARD H. SYRINO
(Central Press Canada Correspondent)

In Canada and the U.S. they are planting crops that will not be harvested for 90 years.

Each year more acres of logged-over lands are replanted or reseeded into what become "tree farms." Particularly in the north-western U.S. is the "tree farm" and reforestation program assuming significant proportions. There Douglas fir trees are planted like any crop, with the main difference being in the harvest date. One of your descendants will do the harvesting.

Eight years ago there was nothing like a tree farm in the northwest. The area was a timber reserve and the trees and hoped that nature would grow some more. Then the large private timber companies caught the conservation fever.

After all, when companies had millions of dollars invested in logging camps and sawmills they had to protect themselves with a continuous supply of raw materials.

So in less than 10 years, 23 states have started tree farms with more than 17,500,000 acres devoted to just growing trees. Of course, in the southern states pine trees are harvested in one lifetime. But in the Pacific northwest, the tree crop is deferred, because Douglas firs are slow to grow. The same is true of reforestation in most of Canada.

Northern U.S. still has the nation's largest stands of virgin timber, now has more than 3,000,000 acres certified as tree farms. Lumbermen take their tree-farming seriously. After all, they admit, they have a responsibility to the rest of the nation.

Lumber For Houses

Right now they supply more than one-third of the nation's softwood lumber. Oregon and Washington, for example, have 42,304,000 acres of commercial forests. There's enough potential timber for a good many million houses.

William D. Hagenstein, forest engineer for the West Coast Lumber-

Seven and Sleepy, two of the most lovable dolls ever. One pair of socks, plus straw-ear hair and scraps for pajamas.

Begin now! Meet these best sellers for the Bassett's Pattern 7022: clothes pattern; directions.

To obtain this pattern send twenty-five cents in coin (stamps cannot be accepted) to Household Arts Department, Winnipeg Newsprint Union, 175 McDermott Avenue E., Winnipeg, Man. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address and Patten Number.

Within a few weeks now, as soon as the fall rains start, the new crop of seedlings will be rooted, about 550 to the acre. Or, if it's an acre left to nature, only enough trees are planted to supplement what nature failed to do.

However, seedlings, too, have an enemy, being often chewed up by rabbits or mountain beaver. This necessitates replanting but this method is successful on the average.

You just cannot declare a patch or logged over timber land as a tree farm. Rules for operating a tree farm are rigid. A timber operator who applies to the joint committee on forest conservation of the West Coast Lumbermen's association and Pacific Northwest Loggers' association, says tree farming is like putting money in the bank.

"The only difference," he explains, is that in the case of growing trees, you don't draw any interest or principal for 90 years. But the value increases nevertheless.

Restocking of logged-over or burned-over areas by nature is the system advocated by the West Coast Lumbermen's association. It's the cheapest by far. In 10 years, with any luck, nature will restock an acre with from 1,000 to 3,000 fir trees.

Where does nature get the seed? Under best forest practices, a logging company now leaves staggered settings. That means that from 60 to 160 acres of timber are cut, then that much is skipped over, so that a place is left close enough where nature can get a supply of Douglas fir seeds to scatter on the winds. If the logged-over area is found to be empty stocked in five to 10 years, then the logging company returns and logs off those so-called seed trees.

There are two other methods. One is to scatter minute Douglas fir seeds (they average about 40,000 to the pound) by helicopter. But many of these are gobbled up by tiny white-footed mice before they have a chance to germinate. This rodent is the scourge of the northwest forest planters and is said to eat its weight every 24 hours.

However, ways are being found to take care of Mr. Mouse. Seeds treated with thallium sulphate are also scattered.

"Two seeds and the mouse is dead—quick!" says Forester Hagenstein. From one-quarter to a half-pound of seeds are scattered per acre, depending on the moisture at the time. But the loss is great. Foresters estimate that it takes about 5,000,000 seeds to produce 500 trees.

Systematic Planting

The third method is hand planting. A planting hole is struck into the ground and into the gap in the earth is inserted a five to seven-inch sapling, with an elaborate root system longer than the tiny tree is high. But this is a costly method, about $20 an acre as compared to $10 or $12 the other way.

Most of the tiny trees come from the West Coast Lumbermen's association's own non-profit nursery at Niqually, Wash., established in 1942, where they are grown scientifically from seed. Last year the nursery produced more than 2,000,000 seedlings. One acre of trees cost timber about $2.75 per 1,000.

Within a few weeks now, as soon as the fall rains start, the new crop of seedlings will be rooted, about 550 to the acre. Or, if it's an acre left to nature, only enough trees are planted to supplement what nature failed to do.

However, seedlings, too, have an enemy, being often chewed up by rabbits or mountain beaver. This necessitates replanting but this method is successful on the average.

You just cannot declare a patch or logged over timber land as a tree farm. Rules for operating a tree farm are rigid. A timber operator who applies to the joint committee on forest conservation of the West Coast Lumbermen's association and Pacific Northwest Loggers' association, says tree farming is like putting money in the bank.

"The only difference," he explains, is that in the case of growing trees, you don't draw any interest or principal for 90 years. But the value increases nevertheless.

Restocking of logged-over or burned-over areas by nature is the system advocated by the West Coast Lumbermen's association. It's the cheapest by far. In 10 years, with any luck, nature will restock an acre with from 1,000 to 3,000 fir trees.

HEALTH

Whooping Cough Takes More Toll Than Polio

A disproportionate emphasis is sometimes placed on poliomyelitis in comparison with other diseases, it is declared in a statement issued by the Health League of Canada.

The statement points out that an editorial in the magazine Health reveals that last year whooping cough alone caused almost as many deaths as diphtheria, polio and scarlet fever combined. In a five-year period, whooping cough caused nearly five times as many deaths as polio, and diphtheria three and a half times as many.

"At this time of the year," the statement says, "parents are nervous about poliomyelitis, or infantile paralysis. Such feeling is understandable, particularly during a year such as this, when there has been a sharp increase in the number of cases. However, since our knowledge of the 'why' of polio epidemics is extremely scanty, there is no room for forecasting an epidemic, nor for prophesying that there will be none."

The statement points out that while there are specific preventives for whooping cough and diphtheria, there is, unfortunately, no such preventive for polio. However, there are sanitary precautions which should be followed. Here are common sense advice offered by health officers throughout Canada.

People should live outdoors as much as possible and make sure of good ventilation when indoors. Water which is not chlorinated should be boiled. Milk supplies should be pasteurized. Streets polluted by sewage should not be used for bathing. Rubbish should be burned or disposed of in proper receptacles. Flies and mosquitoes should be kept out of the home. Dusting should be done with a damp cloth, and sweeping with an electric cleaner. Fatigue and crowds should be avoided.

The Health League statement was issued in connection with forthcoming National Immunization Week, September 11th to 17th, and pointed out that the public should realize that it has a definite duty to see that children are immunized against diphtheria and whooping cough, both of which can be prevented, and each of which usually takes greater annual toll among Canada's children than does polio for which, so far, there has been discovered no specific preventive. The Health League feels that the general public should become as concerned about the tragic effects of diphtheria and whooping cough as they are about possible polio after effects.

Helpful Hints

Citrus research chemists say that a simple way to restore the fresh fruit flavor to canned juices is to pour chilled juice back and forth from one container to another.

If fat in the pan gets on fire, smother it with wet cloth. Never pour water because it makes the fat spatter and may spread the blaze.

Do you use parsley in your bread stuffing? If not, next time you make it, try the parsley—about a 1/2 cup of finely chopped parsley to 2 cups of bread crumbs — and see if you don't like it. We add grated lemon rind to ours, also; uncooked cracked bacon.

Princess Pats Showed Up Well In Manoeuvres

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C. — Eight months ago, the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry was some 300 strong and didn't know much about parades.

Today, nearly up to full strength of roughly 800 men as an airborne infantry battalion, they are recognized as probably the brightest regiment along the first 50 miles of the Alaska highway.

Brigadier Rockley, Rockingham of Vancouver, one of Canada's toughest and best combat soldiers in the recent war and now back in civilian life, called them "magnificent."

The Pats, latest version of a regiment that suffered 6,000 casualties in those two wars, are the first of three regular battalions to be trained for a role in the airborne brigade. It was the opinion of reporters, some of them former war correspondents, that if they are criterion, the brigade is going to be top-notch.

Led by able Lt. Col. Donald Cameron, D.S.O., originally of Cornwall, the Pats are a mixture of veterans and youngsters who didn't get into the war. They are big, tough and intelligent, reflections of the high post-war standards for entrance to the army.

They are trained to parachute, to move equipment by air transport and to use gliders. They did all those things in Exercise Eagle.

They came out of it with no serious injuries.

Col. Cameron chuckles that some of the youngsters' chatter about their jumps is "unfathomable." But he says they generally are typical post-war soldiers, serious, solid people who have entered the army for a financial security, second to learn a trade and third to learn to jump.

Enumerators To Prepare For Big Census Job

OTTAWA. — A lot of people are going to have to answer a lot of questions this fall. The enumerators will give a picture of Canada's population, and agricultural growth in the past 10 years.

In a couple of months, the first enumerators are going out to start a "pilot" census in preparation for the big effort in 1951 when every one of Canada's 260 electoral districts will be combed for facts.

The big 1951 census will take some 18,000 persons to do the job. The pilot census this fall is just to get methods and organization into shape, to iron out the wrinkles in the workings of the questions and make sure that questions won't be open to misinterpretation.

In charge of the census which covers the Dominion every 10 years is O. A. Lemieux, director of census at the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

"We just about get out of one census when we are into another one," Mr. Lemieux says.

Between censuses, the division prepares the census of the last year. Complicating the census this year will be the added problem of Newfoundland's entry into Confederation.

Another thing that keeps the census division fairly busy is the five-year census of the Prairie Provinces. The Prairies made it a condition of their entry into Confederation that they have a census of their progress every five years. So, twice in the 10-year period, they go through the census.

Not until the preliminary census is completed sometime next spring will there be any reliable indication of some of the major changes in population and agriculture in the last 10 years.

"We couldn't hazard a guess at the changes in the various stages of the game," Mr. Lemieux says. "Right now, we're up to our ears in preparation for the preliminary census, we'll have a better idea of the picture."

Botanist Says Dead Plants Can Be Revitalized

An Argentine botanist, experimenting with plant tissues, discovered that they will not die unless they are first killed by being torn apart or burned. He found that even dead flowers and leaves can be brought to life by treatment so that they regain not only their original color, but their texture and even their original odor.

The revitalized plants are not even as good as the original ones, but are alive by all standards and resume growth and all other normal functions as soon as they have been treated.

Experiments are under way to bring dead plants back to life. A piece of dinosaur skin has been treated in this way and the results are said to be successful. If these experiments continue successfully, it may be possible to bring a discovery which will be as significant to mankind as the invention of the atomic bomb.

What Our Visitors Say

This summer there are more cars bearing license plates of the States of the American union to be seen on the streets of cities and towns and on the highways of the West than ever before in history.

If this is true with respect to the West, it is even more to be remarked upon in other parts of Canada. It is a big adventure for most of our visitors from the States. They are here to see the country, to enjoy their holiday in Canada.

When they are interviewed they say they think the Canadians are grand people. They do not hold the same view respecting our roads, and as for our food they evidence a friendly sympathy with courteous restraint. — Moose Jaw Times-Herald.

"Howdy, Joe; me and Ed just found the body of a dead man over there in the hollow," they thought maybe it was you."

"What'd he look like?"

"He was about your build, and—"

"Did he have on a flannel shirt?"

"Yes."

"With red and white checks?"

"No, it was plain grey."

"(Crossing the door)—"Nope, it wasn't he."

GATHER AT THE BARBECUE . . .

These drawings will aid in the construction of an outdoor barbecue.

WE are showing drawings giving the construction of a barbecue stove for outdoor use. These drawings are taken from plans by the Portland Cement Association and when built according to plan this kind of outdoor fireplace not only provides a friendly setting for happy evening parties for young folk, but makes an attractive ornament in the grounds of any home.

This barbecue stove is built on a concrete slab 4 inches thick made of a mixture of 1 part of cement to 2½ parts of sand and 3 parts of crushed stone or screened pebbles. Where bank run gravel is available a very good base can be made from 1 part of cement to 4 parts of bank run gravel. Where no such finish is desired an additional inch of concrete made of 1 part of cement to 3 parts of screened sand may be laid on top of the rough concrete. The walls may be built of concrete.

Cycling Edmonton Girls Receive Marriage Proposals On Tour

LONDON.—Four Edmonton girls on a two-month bicycle and hitchhiking tour of Britain, France and Italy have each had a marriage proposal since they arrived July 1—but they're not taking them seriously.

The girls wandering wherever a whim takes them, are Donna Cron, 22; Joan Campbell, 24; Mary Brock Smith, 20, and Dawn Eckert, 22. They arrived at Liverpool on the liner Arcadia the girls brought themselves bicycles. Then, dressed in blue jeans and bicycle-striped shirts, they peddled off.

Telling of the trip Donna, a laboratory technician said this week, "We made our way through North Wales to Shrewsbury, Oxfordshire and Liverpool, stopping at hotels all the way. We had already had our first proposal of marriage."

"A boy in the ship's orchestra coming over had proposed to Joan. But she is already engaged."

"Almost as soon as we reached London, I noticed our second proposal from a policeman we met."

When we nipped over the channel for a look at Paris a Frenchman proposed.

"It was in Devon that Dawn got her proposal from a territorial in an army camp there."

After about a month of cycling the girls were too tired in the evening to look around the places they visited so they started hitchhiking.

The quartet had only one "really bad moment" since their tour began. They arrived at Exeter, Devonshire, too late one night to arrange for accommodation. In desperation they telephoned police.

"The police picked us up," said Donna, "and told us to learn to look after ourselves."

"At midnight we found a cafe still open and drank about six cups of coffee each. Then it was closing time and we told the proprietor our plight and although it was two in the morning he found a friend who let us have a tiny cupboard of a room for the night."

"That was the best night's sleep we've had."

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

YOU NEVER KNOW

By BERTRAND BECK

BIDDY ought to be keeping her own count, travelling the road of worry alone. But the little brown-haired woman seemed so much like herself, Biddy felt she was talking to a sister.

"I was happy enough until last week," Biddy said.

"Too bad," said the woman, sympathy in her eyes.

"There they were," Biddy went on, "that batch of letters from that woman in Sea Gate, hidden under his fishing gear."

"Ah," sighed the woman her eyes suddenly bright. "Are you going there now?"

"Yes, and after she had seen her she would call Larry and tell him she was on her way to Reno. Seeing the woman would make Biddy's mind; talking to Larry long distance would be easier than telling him face to face."

"I've got the letters here," Biddy said, patting the bridge postcard she had bought for that purpose back in Beaverbrook four days ago.

"I'm going to show her that I have them, and then I'll get Mr. Tick's for tomorrow. Eleven o'clock, Tuesday."

The brown-haired woman turned away, stared out the open window. Biddy felt slightly, she thought the waltz melody in the crook of her elbow, determined not to think of Larry and Beaverbrook.

It was then that she noticed that a woman had come and sat down at her left, a small, dainty woman with delicious perfume. Her blue eyes were on Biddy's face as if she knew Biddy—from a photograph, perhaps. Lawrence carried Biddy's picture with him, Biddy remembered, started into awareness.

"Oh, this woman whose skin was transparent, whose lips were so gay—this was the kind of woman Larry had always admired. And this was the train to Sea Gate."

"I have to talk to you," Biddy said, her voice thin. "I have a feeling of knowing you."

The blonde smiled, teeth white against lipstick. "You're not from Iowa?" she said, a note of harshness in her voice.

"I'm from Missouri, Beaverbrook. I'm on my way to Reno. I came here to see—someone—first."

"Husband trouble," she blonde said, and as if she were suddenly reminded of something she had forgotten, she opened her purse, lifted out a paper on which Biddy saw the name of a Reno hotel. It was a bill, dated last week. The blonde folded it carefully. "I almost thought I'd lost it," she said. "What does your husband say to taking the long way to Nevada? Expensive, isn't it?"

"I have my own savings," Biddy said. "Lawrence doesn't know that I know he's been—unfaithful."

The blonde laughed bitterly. "I suppose a man coming to New York would want things he never had. I'm not at home in Beaverbrook. Theatres and gaiety."

"I have my own savings," Biddy said. "Lawrence doesn't know that I know he's been—unfaithful."

She Thought She Knew
The One — But Was Mistaken.

There was no use denying the truth.

This woman, lovely and delicate and seductive, this woman had recognized her. This woman had been making Larry happy. Biddy went to scream, Biddy hit her lips.

The blonde was thinking aloud. "It doesn't hurt, their marriages, most of the time," she said.

"How do you know?" said Biddy. "I get it," the girl flicked her eyelashes. "You think I'm your woman."

"She shrugged. "It couldn't occur to you that maybe I'm in the same boat—with my husband going west regularly and forgetting to tear up the letters. Her eyes narrowed. "Maybe it was you who was seeing out there in Iowa. How can I be sure? You're the kind that would make him roasts and apple pies and let him go to sleep after dinner in a big chair near the fire while you knit him socks. I hate sitting around the house! And now I'm free—"

"How does it feel?" said Biddy, apologetic.

The blonde's eyes flitted. "Awful," she whispered. "I never realized—"

"I'm not so sure. If I could do it over again I wouldn't. Take my advice, go back to Iowa, or Missouri, or wherever you live!"

"Thank you," Biddy said. "I don't want advice. I want my divorce."

The blonde stood up. "Well, good luck."

"Is this a station?"

"Is this the last stop. If you're going to Sea Gate, you take the train."

"Are there telephones here?"

"In every drug store."

"I ought to be calling Larry in half an hour," Biddy said as the train chugged away.

"Wait," the woman said, her voice clear. "I have with me your letters, and pretend you never knew. Put them back under his gear and make sure they're in the right envelope. He's very finicky!"

"You!" gasped Biddy.

"I've all over. I won't be here when he comes again. I'm going back home to South Dakota. I've got my car, you know. Please don't tell him you know!" She turned sharply and ran down the ramp.

"You!" Biddy cried out and over. "You!" Biddy cried out and over. "You!" Biddy cried out and over.

FORMER DESERT LAND YIELDS RICH TIMBER

A piece of Scottish land, six miles long and two miles wide, at Culbin, near Nairn, on the Moray Firth, given up for centuries as a useless desert has just given its first yield of timber. In future it will supply large quantities of pit props for United Kingdom mines.

and within a few years this six thousand acres of waste and rolling sand will become one of the richest forests in Britain. It has taken man 28 years to undo the damage wrought by a single gale on a night in 1694. For generations back in Scotland's history, Culbin, the great granary of Morayshire, has been a flourishing agricultural area. Twenty-eight years ago the Forestry Commission took over the waste. Early efforts to stem the tide of sand by growing trees failed. Now it has been saved by thatching. To-day, four thousand acres have been planted with Corsican Pine, Scots Pine, and Lodge Pole Pine. The remaining two thousand acres are to be treated similarly.

THE MAGPIE MENACE

Kerry Wood, naturalist of Red Deer, describes the Magpie as the most clever and one of the most beautiful members of the Corvidae bird family. But, every farmer and sportsman is well aware of the tremendous toll these handsome birds take in wild life, domestic fowl and livestock in Alberta.

The magpie kills new-born calves, lambs and fawn by pecking out the eyes of these helpless animals. It eats and destroys countless thousands of game and song-bird eggs. They invade poultry yards to kill off young chicks and turkey poults and even dine on hen eggs. Another grisly habit of the magpie is to attack open stores on livestock, often enlarging the wound to such an extent to cause death.

It is understandable that with these outlaws on the increase in Alberta, it is up to the farmer and towns people alike to destroy the magpie and crow whenever possible, by shooting, trapping or controlled poison measures.
